On 14/08/2026 at approximately 11:30 hours, the complainant received a WhatsApp message from an unknown number claiming to represent "Instant Loan Services", offering a pre-approved personal loan of Rs. 5,00,000 with no documentation required. The sender, identifying himself as Vikram Singh Rathore, directed the complainant to install a mobile application named "QuickLoanPro" via a link sent over WhatsApp in order to "verify eligibility". After installation, the complainant was asked to pay a refundable processing fee of Rs. 2,45,000 via a UPI QR code shared in the same chat to unlock loan disbursement. Upon scanning the QR code and confirming the transaction with his UPI PIN, the amount was debited from the complainant's bank account across three instalments within twenty minutes. No loan amount was ever credited, and the accused became unreachable thereafter. The complainant suspects the application requested excessive device permissions and may have accessed banking credentials without consent, and requests investigation and recovery of the defrauded amount.
